Out Come of the Activities/workshop/seminar

It is important to recognize that attempts to undertake definitive studies, or provide conclusive evidence of the outcomes of career guidance activities continue to be beset by a recurring set of issues.

- There are a wide range of factors which influence individual career choice and decision-making, and/or which can impact on outcomes.
- Career guidance is frequently not a discrete input, but rather is embedded in other contexts, such as learning provision, employer/employee relationships, and or within multi-strand initiatives.
- Comparing the evidence available in different studies is problematic when the nature of career guidance, the depth of work undertaken and client groups, vary considerably.
- There is not an agreed set of outcome measures for career guidance, or common methods of collecting output, or outcome data, except in the case of a limited number of discrete program mes/areas of work.
